

LET OUT BY HEAVY VOTE

August had declared adherence to and solidarity with the revolutionary forces of soviet Russia; that it had endorsed the principles of the communist international at Moscow; that the constitution and by-laws of the Socialist party provided that members of the dues-paying organization elected to public office might be expelled from the party if they refused to abide by the instructions of the organization, and that such instructions might be given by an executive committee made up in whole or in part of aliens.

The resolutions charged the Socialist members with being engaged in a "large and well-organized conspiracy to subvert the due administration of the law and to destroy the right to own and hold private property honestly acquired, and to overturn the whole fabric of our constitutional form of government," and charged the judiciary committee of the assembly with the duty of conducting an inquiry.

Hearings were begun Jan. 20, after the judiciary committee had been appointed and had organized, with Louis M. Martin, Republican of Oneida, as chairman. A notable array of attorneys headed by Attorney General Charles D. Newton appeared for the state, while Morris Hillquit, Seymour Stedman, Gilbert E. Roe, S. John Block, William Karlin and Walter Nelles appeared for the suspended assemblymen.

Hearings almost month. Twenty-four days were consumed in the hearings. Last Monday night seven members of the committee signed the majority report, which recommended the expulsion of all five Socialists and the enactment of legislation designed to provide that no party which includes minors or aliens in its membership, may have a position on the official ballot. Dissenting opinions recommending the expulsion of Waldman, Claessens and Solomon and the reseat of DeWitt and Orr and recommending that all the suspended members be restored to their seats, were signed by one and five members respectively.

Eliza Thomson, who has become acting president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been one of the leaders in the electrical world for more than 40 years and has 500 patents on his own inventions, one of the most important of which is electric welding. Professor Thomson is a native of Manchester, England, who, coming to the United States early in his career, was sent to public schools in Philadelphia and after his graduation became a teacher of chemistry and mechanics. For the next 10 years he was experimenting, producing new devices, and attracting attention by his writings on electricity. In 1889 he ceased to be a pedagogic and entered into active work as an electrical scientist. Later he became consulting expert, as well as part owner, of the largest corporation in the world devoted to the manufacture of electrical machinery.
